

Teasing and Pleasing

Recommended: Describe when someone appropriately pleased your dog persona:

Description of the pleasing behavior:

Evidence of you being pleased:

Evidence of increase in the relationship (either immediately, or over time, or both):

Least Recommended Describe when someone (hopefully inadvertently) teased your dog persona:

Description of the teasing behavior:

Evidence of your unhappiness:

Evidence of decrease in the relationship (either immediately, or over time, or both):

Recommended Describe when someone teased your cat persona:

Description of the teasing behavior:

Evidence of you being intrigued:

Evidence of increase in the relationship (either immediately, or over time, or both):

Least Recommended Describe when someone (hopefully inadvertently) pleased your cat persona: (Used Golden Rule)

Description of the “pleasing” behavior:

Evidence of you not being pleased (ie. bored or annoyed):

Evidence of decrease in the relationship (either immediately, or over time, or both):

Describe the difference between when you are a displeased cat and a displeased dog. Share how the same behavior (either please or tease) has the opposite effect based on which animal you are operating from. Reflect on the immediacy and/or long-term effect of pleasing or displeasing you as a dog and a cat.